

Mind & Matter

New Thinking Creates New Realities - How Is Your Inner Climate?

Monday 15 June, 19:00 – 21:30

Brahma Kumaris Centre

Bischoffsheimlaan 39, 4c

1000 Brussels

T:02463 3827,

Take part in shaping Europe's sustainable energy future
E: brussels@be.brahmakumaris.org

How Is Your Inner Climate?

When we talk about the sweeping changes that need to be made relative to climate change, we need to include the inner dimension as well as the outer. Statistics and discussions about emissions are in themselves not enough.

Two fundamental shifts are needed. One is a genuine understanding of the world and humanity as being interdependent entities. Each choice we make has a consequence for ourselves and for others. The other is to realise that our way of thinking creates the world around us. What we need is a realization a global scale that both causes us to see the Earth as a delicate living system and inspires us to take on the elevated task of being the Earth's trustees.

Panel

Maureen Goodman, Programme Director, Brahma Kumaris Europe is one of the pioneers of Brahma Kumaris work in the UK and has been at the hub of major events and initiatives in the UK and around the world since 1980's. Maureen is directly involved the community outreach including youth projects, prison work and environmental initiative's.

Joachim Golo Pilz, Advisor Renewable Energy, has played a key role since 1993 in establishing the Brahma Kumaris as one of the major users of renewable energies in India. He advocates sustainable solutions through an ethical and value-based approach.

Sonja Ohlsson, International Co-ordinator, Brahma Kumaris Environment Initiative